Employee Fraternization Policy

Subway wants to preserve a working environment that has clear boundaries between personal and professional relationships. This is believed to be the best practice for conducting business in a professional manner. This policy establishes clear boundaries with regard to how relationships develop at work and within the confines of the work area.

- During working hours and in work areas, employees of Subway are expected to keep all personal interactions limited and at a professional level to avoid distracting or offending others.
- Employees are prohibited from engaging in any physical interactions that would be seen as inappropriate in the work area. What constitutes inappropriate conduct is in the discretion of the Company.
- Employees who engage in personal relationships with others and allow these relationships to negatively affect the working environment will be subject to disciplinary action. If said employees fail to change their behavior after disciplinary action takes place, they may be subject to termination.

Romantic relationships between supervising, managing or executive employees and subordinates are strictly prohibited. If a relationship does develop between a supervising employee and his or her subordinate, management must be notified immediately so that a department store transfer may be considered.

The 90-day probationary period provides the Company the opportunity to observe and evaluate the capacity of the employee, which includes the employee's ability to satisfactorily perform the essential duties of his or her job; and to observe and evaluate the employee's work habits and conduct, including attendance and the employee's relationship with coworkers and supervisors.

During this probationary period, the Company may terminate employment immediately, with or without cause. Likewise, the employee may also terminate his or her employment with the Company at any time, with or without notice and with or without cause.

The 90 day probationary period is not a term of employment and is not intended, nor does it impact the at will nature of the relationship between the Company and the employee.

I understand that my first 90 days of employment is my probationary period that I can be terminated within the first 90 days with or without cause or notice.
